EVENING EDITION.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA :::::AUGUST 21.

GEORGIA STATE PRESS CONVENTION.—A convention of the newspaper press of the State of Georgia, will be held in Atlanta, on Tuesday, August the 24th, and it is respectfully and urgently desired that every newspaper in the State be represented. The Convention will assemble at eleven o'clock.

☞See Fourth Page.

☞ Don't fail to read Judge Dent's stinging letter to Mr. Boutwell. He handles old Hole-in-the-sky with gloves off.

☞ In reply to Ignoramus Legis we would state that we know of no law authorizing Justices to exact costs from acquitted parties. Our columns are open to these Justices to show their authority.

PERSONAL.—We had the pleasure of a call this morning, from our long-time friend and old comrade, Col. Lucius Lamar, of Macon, the gallant leader for a long time, of the heroic old 8th Georgia. We were glad to see our friend, who looks as well and is as genial as ever.

Relief.

We have the decisions of the Supreme Court, delivered to-day, including those upon the important subjects of slave notes and homesteads. We have not space to give the decisions in full in this issue, and therefore, for the benefit of parties, announce the result. We will give the whole in our next issue.

The Court runs the same programme as heretofore on Relief. Chief Justice Brown and Judge McCay decide it to the last syllable, and Judge Warner dissents. The slave notes are buried beyond resurrection. The Chief Justice thinks it no worse to kill negro securities than to kill the property in the chattel itself. While, homesteads are retro-active and everything else vital, on high constitutional grounds of lofty jurisprudence, viz: public expediency.

We were in the Supreme Court room for a brief while when the negro notes were under discussion, and heard Col. Warren Akin make a strong argument in favor of their validity. He uttered some burning invective against the infamy of that Constitution which drives the widows and orphans of the country remediless from its Courts, and destroys their honest claims, while those who have enjoyed the benefit of their property and the use and hire of their negroes, are permitted to laugh at the demand for payment. The Colonel advanced the position, remarkable in these days, that creditors had a few little bits of rights as well as debtors.

These dicta about wind up Relief.

STATE CORRESPONDENCE.

Where do Justices get Authority for Asking Costs from Acquitted Parties?

TUNNELL HILL, Aug. 20, 1869.

Mr. Editor: In your issue of the 20th. in giving the account of the trial of Mr. Bostock, in the Justices' Court of your city, sitting as a court of inquiry, you state the Court discharged the defendant on paying costs of prosecution. I can find no authority in the Code, or subsequent acts of the Legislature, for such decision. If he was not guilty, he should have paid no costs. See Code, section 4633 to 4650, on power of Courts of Inquiry, in which no such power is given them. If such Courts acquit defendant, they can have no further power to tax costs against defendant, than Superior Courts on final acquittal, and by sections 4538 and 4602, those Courts can only award costs against defendants in cases of escape or conviction—the former of said sections positively stating that the defendant shall pay no costs in cases of acquittal. I have no interest—knowing nothing of the parties—in the case in point, but write this at request of several Justices, who have had cases in which they would have given a like decision, but could find no law for same. Can you, being a lawyer, give them an answer?

IGNORAMUS LEGIS.

Educational Notes.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN, TENN., Aug. 17.

The Tennessee Teachers' Association, convenes this morning in the Chapel attached to the Lookout Mountain Institute. The members are somewhat late in assembling, but the Chapel is comfortably filled with an educational public, gathered from all parts of the State, only half an hour after the time appointed for beginning the session, viz: half-past ten o'clock.

The day is warm but not sultry. All the public conveyances in Chattanooga, besides those employed at the Institute, are engaged in carrying members and visitors up the winding and wild mountain-road. From all appearances, many of those who are present, are not actively engaged in education, but have seized this occasion to visit the picturesque scenery upon the historic mountain.

Dr. Lindsay, of Nashville, Chairman of the Executive Committee, makes a report of the Committee, giving a programme of the order of business. Prof. Bancroft, of the Lookout Mountain Institute, then reads the Address of Welcome, responded to by the Chair. The two addresses occupied ten minutes. Hon. William Bosson, of Murfreesboro, who is in the presiding chair, fulfilled his duties with consummate ability. The argument of the formal address (by the Rev. T. E. Bliss, of Memphis) seems to be that no ignorant country can hope for the blessings of freedom. The work which Garibaldi sought to do, must first be done, in the Italian chools. Among the constituents necessary for the success of our common school system, is the founding of a Southern Educational Journal, and the following amendments of the school law: The local authorities should have authority to levy taxes for school purposes; the school funds should be held for school purposes, and for no others; the children and the youth of the State should be required to attend school a portion of the time every year; the common school system should be supplemented by normal schools; the compensation of the State Superintendent should be increased, to insure a high talent in the work; and lastly, that officer should be elected by the Legislature, and term of service lengthened.

The entire burden of the address, which was fifty minutes in length, was, that investments of an educational character, are most productive for the interests of the people. The entire address might have been built on the aphorism of Plato: "Better to be unborn than to be untaught," and assuredly could not have been more elegantly finished than in the classic period in which the Reverend Speaker likened any Southern mother State to the mother of the Gracchi, whose jewels were "her children."

Punctually, at 12 o'clock, Prof. Bailey, of Edgefield, being dead, Rev. J. Brayton, reports in a brief discussion of the address, which does not so much dispute or amplify upon points as it suggests new ones. Rev. W. R. Wallace, of Rutherford county, reports the masses of his county as co-operating efficiently with the present methods and occupies fifteen minutes in a manner to which the racy address of Judge Mills, is a decided relief. Mr. McKinney, Company Superintendent of Clarkesville, follows. On motion of General Eaton, State Superintendent, the following committee is appointed to consider the subject of the address: Col. Bosson, Dr. Lindsay, Rev. Mr. Bliss, Messrs. Willis, Tade, Wilcox and Bancroft. The Association then adjourns to meet at "the Point," at 3 o'clock.

EARNEST.

DENT.

He Lays Down his Carpet-Bag to "Hand" Boutwell "One"—"My Brother-in-Law's Policy."

WASHINGTON, August 17, 1869.

Hon. George S. Boutwell, Secretary of the Treasury:

SIR—I shall make little apology for asking your attention to my letter, and less for the nature of its contents. You were the first to deny the political orthodoxy of my friends and myself, and by all the rules of the forum I am entitled to a defense. Again, you hold an office of the Republic, and your acts thereof are legitimate subjects of criticism by the humblest citizen thereof. But in some respects we are alike; for instance, we are both aspirants for place, with this difference—you aim to be the next President, with every assurance of success, except in the opinion of the people; while I seek an humbler place with my hopes in a disastrous eclipse, except in the judgment of Mississippi. So, in the probable result of the future, we both stand adverse to the judgment of the country.

FIRST ROUND—BOUTWELL DOWN.

In the pursuit of your ambition you are unscrupulous as to the means of your success. Your organ, the New York Sun, in the same breath ridicules the capacity of your master and dwells with emphasis on your peculiar fitness for his office.

Your excellent tool, Mr. Tullock, became so reckless in the manipulation of your department in the interest of your ambition, and so defiant of the wishes of the President and the country, that to save yourself from an explosion of popular indignation you found it convenient to transfer him to another sphere of scandalous activity, where his talents might be exerted with equal effect and less effrontery.

SECOND ROUND—MORE PUNISHMENT.

Virginia, Tennessee, Mississippi, and Texas, not to mention anything so humble as myself, were obstructions in the way of your success, because, through President Grant's intervention in excluding the proscriptive clauses from their organic laws, these States are brought into the Union firmly welded to his support. Now, this is in direct conflict with your systematized plans; for what General Grant gets in the next election, clearly Mr. Boutwell will not get; and therefore you have denounced the Conservative Republicans, who are for Grant, that you may obtain the proscriptive Republicans, who are for Boutwell; and, by some strange, dextrous management and occult political strategy, you have so worked upon the confidence of the President as to cause him to flourish the club with which you intend to break his head, by inducing him to join you in denunciation of the Conservative Republicans, a party created by his magnanimity, and triumphant through his management.

THIRD ROUND, A BLOW FROM THE SHOULDER.

But, sir, your purpose was easily discerned, and has a two-fold object, namely, to destroy the National Republican party in the South, and then to reconstruct from its shattered fragments a Boutwell party, with no Richmond in the field to strike for your crown. But if you cannot succeed in this scheme of desperate enterprise, you mean to ruin—a result, from present appearances, much more likely to be reached.

Your official intervention for Wells, for instance, gave 30,000 majority for Walker. Your letter to Stokes gave Senter Tennessee by an overwhelming vote of 70,000. Your marvellous political sagacity, now active in Mississippi and Texas, will repeat your calamity, and again overwhelm you with discomfiture and defeat. Superadd to these results of your unapproachable folly the imposition on these States of your ironclad oath, and the alienation is complete, landing them all in the outstreatched arms of Democracy.

But the consequence of your folly does not end here. Ohio and Pennsylvania and others will follow, decide their political status in October, and the North will echo back the condemnation of the South and peal in your ears this fact—that there is still enough of the incorruptable virtue of the Republic to rebuke you for a wanton repression of that most sacred right, the elective franchise.

FOURTH ROUND, THE SECRETARY'S HEAD IN CHANCERY.

But, sir, this will not deter you from your mad course. You will still persist until every prop that supports our party is stricken away and the whole grand superstructure tumbles about our ears in hopeless ruin.

When you were appointed Secretary of the Treasury, and unanimously confirmed by a Senate of every shade of political opinion, did you not take an oath to administer your office impartially, and for the exclusive object of its creation—to collect the revenue and control the finances of the country? Is not that office the property of the nation, and yourself only clothed for a time with a little authority? Then, sir, how do you explain this perversion of its legitimate uses and functions into a means and instrument of oppression, and compel the election of obnoxious rulers upon the people of the South? Is such a course consistent with your oath of office, or do you call this a great moral idea? But, Mr. Boutwell, though you have thus prostituted the powers of your office for purposes of oppression, without the warrant of conscience or law, it may be that you can tell me by what authority you presume to pronounce upon my political orthodoxy. Who constituted you the infallible hope of Republicanism? Who gave you authority to hurl the political anathemas of the party? Again, what right had you to commit the administration to your policy? Have you to learn yet that you are only a part of the administration, and not the whole of it; though your friends believe that a monomania has seized your mind on that subject, and that you verily believe yourself the State.

Very respectfully, LEWIS DENT.

A QUERY.—By "Infaustus."—The illustrious Goldsmith, in his essay on "Unfortunate Merit," says: "Every age seems to have its favorite pursuits, which serve to amuse the idle, and relieve the attention of the industrious. Happy the man who is born excellent in the pursuit in vogue, and whose genius seems adapted to the times in which he lives."

I ask what pursuit is at present most in vogue, and what will relieve the attention of the industrious" of the present day?

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 21.—It is stated, on excellent authority, that neither general Lee nor any noted Confederate officer will attend the Gettysburg indentification meeting. Confederate Generals avoid the meeting because they are apprehensive of disagreements regarding numbers, positions, relative valor, and other objections to the Gettysburg identification. The Corps commanders are Longstreet, in New Orleans; A. P. Hill, dead; Ewell, from loss of leg and health, unable to travel; and Stuart, Commanding Cavalry, dead; and, without the presence of these officers, a correct identification is impossible.

The negroes implicated in outraging a lady near Front Royal, Va., was hung by citizens.

The Cubans here have advices to the fifteenth. It is reported that the disorganization of the Spanish volunteer forces is complete. Many are affiliating with Cespedes. No fight.

CINCINNATI, O., August 21.—Two deaths from heat.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., August 21.—The creeks having dwindled to puddles; several disastrous fires have occurred. Much apprehension is felt from want of water.

PARIS, FRANCE, August 21.—The Empress and Prince Imperial depart Eastward on Monday. The French authorities arrested twelve Carlist leaders while attempting to cross the borders.

HAVANA, CUBA, August 21.—DeRodas has gone to Matanzas. Three coast patrol schooners are receiving armament at the Arsenal.

LONDON, ENGLAND, August 21.—Betting 2 to 1 against the Harvards.

Afternoon.—Cotton continues easy; sales 12,000 bales, whereof 4,000 bales are for export and speculation. Tallow 47s. 6d; others articles unchanged.

THIERS ON REPUBLICS—The French Historian makes a Prediction.—Europe, he said, is marching toward the republic; but you young men must not deceive yourselves. By the faults of Governments which sometimes yield when they ought to be firm, and sometimes resist when they ought only to curb and direct, this century will see only the period of transition, a transition which will be bloody, terrible, and which I thank God I am not to see. The blending of social and political, of interior and exterior problems, is such at this period that nations are fatally forced to decide all questions by suppressing all. But violent suppression and solution are two things, and shift them as you please, questions will still exist as threatening as ever. It is only when the New World, which is already tearing the flanks of the Old, shall have acquired enough of virility and of wisdom to vanquish and to decide, that an economical Republic will bring back order and peace to our society. The youngest of you will see the prologue to the civilization of the future.

☞ The Davenport (Iowa) Democrat tells of a singular case of superstition: "Chatting with an aged lady, we noticed the wonderful preservation and beauty of her teeth, and could not refrain from mentioning it. 'Yes,' said she, 'I never had a toothache or lost a tooth, because I bit the snake.' On inquiry, she stated that when children at home, her father had made them bite a rattlesnake, he holding the reptile by the head and tail; each child bit along the entire length of the backbone, not violently, but just so as to indent the skin; and this was considered an infallible recipe against toothache and decay, and which the old lady believes up to the present hour."

ARREST OF GENERAL DIX IN NEW YORK.—Gen. John A. Dix, late Minister to France, was arrested yesterday, at the suit of John Mitchell, "the Irish Patriot," who charges him with illegal imprisonment. Mitchell, it will be remembered, was arrested in this city and imprisoned at Fortress Monroe by Gen. Dix, in the summer of 1865, and upon this fact he brings suit for $25,000 damages. Gen. Dix gave security in the amount of $20,000 to answer the charge. N. Y. Herald, August 18.

☞ A Saratoga correspondent thus discourses of Vanderbilt: "As we sit smoking our cigar on the piazza, Commodore Vanderbilt passes, chatting with a rather interesting young lady. For a man who has seen three score years and ten, he is wonderfully well preserved. He steps as light as a shadow, and looks more fresh than some men of fifty. I have come to the conclusion that old age was invented by the lazy. A man who is well at seventy is just as much well as he was at twenty-five; and a man is just as helpless at thirty as he who has passed the allotted age of man. It is a disease, not age, that wears out the system. Old Parr, if our recollection is correct, was sued for a breach of promise at one hundred and thirty."

A Proclamation.

GEORGIA:

By Rufus B. Bullock, Governor of said State.

WHEREAS, official information has been received at this Department, that a murder was committed in the county of Telfair, on the 23d day of July, 1869, upon the body of Joseph T. Rawlins by John K. Brown, and that the said Brown has fled from justice.

I have thought proper, therefore, to issue this, my proclamation, hereby offering a reward of Two Hundred Dollars for the apprehension and delivery of the said Brown, with proof sufficient to convict, to the Sheriff of said county and State.

And I do moreover charge and require all officers in this State, civil and military, to be vigilant in endeavoring to apprehend the said Brown, in order that he may be brought to trial for the offense with which he stands charged.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the State, at the Capitol in Atlanta, this 19th day of August, in the year of our Lord, Eighteen Hundred and Sixty-Nine, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the Ninety-Fourth.

RUFUS B. BULLOCK, Governor.

By the Governor:

DAVID G. COTTING, Secretary of State.

DESCRIPTION.

The said Brown is 38 years of age, 5 feet 10 or 11 inches high, dark complexion, dark hair, blue eyes, spare built, weighs about 165 pounds, wore large whiskers and moustache when last seen; is rather assuming in his manners. aug21d3tawlt

MORNING EDITION.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA :::::: AUGUST 22.

Major Gen. John A. Wharton.

The Texan Rangers, or the Eighth Texas Cavalry, were the most peculiar Southern soldiery of the late war. They were like no other troops that we had. They combined the most opposite qualities, and were a military anomaly. They were excellent fighters and inveterate stragglers. They were always in the battle, right at the front, and at the same time never missed the sacking of a wagon train or captured town. On the march and in the camp, they were scattered over the whole country, while a fight drew them unerringly to their places. Gallant as men can be, they had about as much camp discipline as Camanchees. Ever ready for service, and doing anything cheerfully that was enjoined them, off of service they were as independant as wood-sawyers, and as restless and wild as Gypsies.

Our cavalry of the West had more service dismounted than mounted, but the Ranger could not be induced by any persuasion to leave his horse, and he would fight horseback in a jungle. They all seemed born horsemen. The Centaur never formed a being more a unit than the ranger and his steed. And though the restless beings were going night and day, their horses never appeared in a bad condition. They had the finest animals in the service, and rode them harder, longer and faster than any other troopers. If they lost their stock in battle, or wore them down on the march, they had a knack of right away supplying the loss, equalled by nothing earthly unless a Bedouin Arab. Their fondness for and attention to their steeds was sleepless. Rations in plenty they would have if they had to straggle a dozen leagues to find the necessary corn-crib, and if Quartermaster documents wouldn't bring the fodder it was a tough bolt and a strong door that could keep them out.

Away a thousand or more miles from their State, and too far off for a reasonable furlough to take them more than half way, they made their camp their home, and hence it was the inevitable terminus of their wanderings.

The gayest, most debonnair, rollicking of spirits, they seemed to have cast off every restraint, and revelled in the most reckless of deviltry. The majority of them educated gentlemen, they were altogether, the sharpest, wildest, bravest, smartest set of soldiers that the war afforded. They scattered their witticisms and jokes broadcast. Fearing nobody, caring for nobody, they didn't hesitate to tackle any body in an encounter of trenchant humor, or a volley of downright abuse. Sparkling in that sort of practical gibes, that the war engendered, that found subjects in the grotesqueries of the service, and lavished its sarcasm and point on the follies and absurdities of the situation, they became feared alike for their cutting tongues, and dare-devil audacity. They were the terror of peacable farmers, and timid soldiers. Their pleasantries were merciless, and their plundering ingenious, daring, and often comical.

In a charge they were inimitable. Their dash was splendid. They rode over belching cannon, sped upon stacked infantry or crashed against rushing horseman with the same reckless elan, and invincible boldness that they used in foraging up a meal.

Their appearance was unique and picturesque. Riding always with long stirrups and a singularly graceful, firm and easy seat in the saddle, with peculiar immense broad-brimmed, sombrero hats, huge jingling spurs with rowels nearly as large as saucers, with the strange and attractive style of saddle, known as Mexican, with slender, hardly visible hair bridles, and with their buck skin garments, arabesquely enbroidered and fringed, they made up a brigandish looking and bizarre style of warriorr. They had too, that peculiar abandon of manner, that generally grows from the freedom and absence of social restraint in frontier life. They savored of their free woods and wild prairies. Their feats of horsemanship were beyond the tame possibility of our more conventional riding. They seemed more at home in the saddle than on the ground. To jump off and on their horses at full speed, to clamp their big rowels into the cantle of the saddle, and grasping the horses mane with one hand, throw the body over to the side and pick up a small object from the ground at a racing gallop, was a common thing. .

They were inimitable fellows in a fight. We have frequently had the regiment under our command, when in charge of a brigade, and there were no better troopers in the melee.

They never flinched, and received and executed the grim order to "charge," as if it was a positive luxury.

General Wharton rose from a captaincy to be their colonel, and was afterwards rapidly promoted successively to brigadier and major-general. He was a fine type of these dashing Texans, exemplifying their best traits and peculiar characteristics. He mingled in a rare degree the glee and playful enthusiasm of the boy, with the resolute courage and cool judgment of the man. He was a curious mixture of reckless hardihood and consummate caution. The blending made the most useful type of the cavalry soldier. With the most headlong audacity he yet combined the coolest calculation.

The writer was one day riding alone from Corinth to his camp four miles distant, early in 1863, when three or four Texans came racing down the road at full speed, shouting and laughing in the ecstacy of a sharp run. One was a slender gentleman of forty, orthereabouts, magnificently mounted, with a thin face, marked, but not handsome features, dark, large, flashing eyes, beardless, with auburn hair, and a nervous and restless manner, who seemed the jolliest of the party. It was John A. Wharton. A few days after, the same party dashed into our camp, taking us absolutely by storm with their rollicking jollity. General, then Colonel Wharton, had heard that we had a fine horse to sell, and he came to buy it, according to the Ranger custom of getting every good nag in the country. This was our first acquaintance with the noble Texan. The party left as suddenly as they came, like lightning, and in a whirlwind of bustle.

In 1863 we reported with our Regiment to Gen. Wharton, commanding a division of horsemen under Gen. Wheeler in Middle Tennessee. We served under him for nearly two years. We were with him in many a fierce charge, hard march, depressing retreat, savagely-contested battle and weary camp, and we learned to both love and admire him. Endowed with signal administrative ability, a popular turn of unusual felicity, and an almost imperious decision of character, he stood deservedly high among his men. He never forgot his soldiers. Fiery in his pluck, he was yet cool, thoughtful and cautious, and he did as few rash acts as any officer we had.

He was always a boy in his social relations—frolicsome, generous, hospitable, laughing. But under all he carried resolute nerve, sharp sagacity, shrewd foresight, a strong brain, piercing judgment, and very considerable powers of diplomacy. With a constant play of warm sentiment he was also a wary thinker. But he was above all vaultingly ambitious. He bore in his almost riotous hilarity of manner the boldest and loftiest schemes of personal advancement. Amid all his gleeful abandon and impetuous simplicity, he worked with astute power and unswerving grit to push his daring aspirations. His common sense was perfect.

The only fault we ever thought he possessed as a soldier, was in his reach for higher command, he hardly respected enough the authority above him.

He finally left the Western Army, at his own request, to go to Texas, to command the cavalry of the trans-Mississippi, and he was murdered in a private difficulty, the incidents of which we have never learned fully.

Had General Wharton have lived, his career would have been prominent in politics. His daring ambition would have sought the only channel open to it, and he had the ability and nerve to have carried him on top. He was a fervent and impassioned speaker, and had a strong native sway over others. That he would have brilliantly distinguished himself and illustrated the great "Lone Star" commonwealth, we do not doubt.

We can not better conclude this sketch than with his manly view of the relation of friend. He said that he regarded the capacity for friendship, as one of the highest marks of a noble nature, and he prided himself upon this trait of his character. In the intimate association of two years' service together, a warm attachment was built up between the writer and General Wharton; and we pay this tribute of friendly affection to the memory of as knightly a soldier, as good an officer, as ardent a Southerner, and interesting a character as we ever knew; and we never think of him, but we sigh over the untimely death of the noble, chivalric Texan, JOHN A. WHARTON.

Swedenborgianism.

Perhaps, there is a greater ignorance of "Swedenborgianism" than any other known religious faith. It is also called the "New Jerusalem," and the "New Church" denomination.

Many think it modern spiritualism—a mistake. Many think it a vague mysticism. Many regard it as a dark heresy. Many confound it with unitarianism. Few, outside of its members, have taken the trouble to look into its beauties. The following article is the truest we have yet seen on this subject, and we commend it to our readers:

The popular ignorance and prejudice concerning the doctrines of what its disciples call the "New Church," but what is far more generally known by the name of its eminent founder as the Swedenborgian Church, afford a curious illustration of the "odium theologicum." Few persons who have not made them the subject of special study, know at all what those doctrines are. Even well-informed clergymen have sometimes a vague notion that they are "spiritualistic" or "infidel" or "unitarian;" and Swedenborgianism and "free-love" and "socialism" are most singularly intermixed in the minds of a good many people who ought to be better informed concerning the character of a denomination which is really characterized by nothing more than by the excellent lives and pure characters of most of its adherents. So far from being amenable to tha charge of immorality, the theology of Swedenborgianism insists with great strenuousness upon interior purity of heart. So far from being Unitarian, it recognizes in Jesus the only one living and true God, the Infinite and Divine Spirit, not united with a human nature, but simply tabernacled in a human body. So far from being "infidel," the Swedenborgians pay to the written Word a reverence only less than that paid by the ancient Jew to his sacred Scriptures. So far from being "spiritualistic," they denounce Spiritualism with a vigor intensified by their mystical faith as a dealing with evil spirits, the very sin punishable with death under the Mossic code. Swedenborgianism is the very antipodes of Rationalism. The one recognizes reason as the supreme arbiter in religion; the other founds its religious beliefs wholly on faith. In the Rationalists ideality and marvelousness are almost wholly wanting; in the Swedenborgian they predominate. The Rationalists are critics; the Swedenborgians are men of imagination. The Rationalists number among them a large proportion of the scientists; to the standard of Swedenborg flock quantities of poets, artists, musicians. His Church is composed of men of refined and cultivated tastes, rather than of skeptical or vigorous understandings. To the one, religion is a science—to the other, a poem.

It might at first be supposed that Swedenborg and his doctrines have exerted but little influence on the world. Swedenborgian Churches are few in number. They exercise neither the power of wealth nor that of numbers. They compare neither with Episcopacy on the one hand nor with Methodism on the other. And if the moral power of a doctrine is to be measured by the number or charactar of its open and avowed adherents, Swedenborgianism might be disregarded as an inconsidegate factor in the world of religious thought. But neither Swedenborg nor his disciples accept this popular criterion. Earnest in their faith, they are in no sense propagandists. They seem to be supremely indifferent about extending their organization; a quieter, in some respects a healthier, ambition is theirs. It is to imbue teachers of other schools with their forms of thought. They take a secret and silent pleasure in recognizing in popular sermons and treatise the evidence, seen only by themselves, of the influence their leader has exerted and is exerting. More than any other form of religious thought, Swedenborgianism is a "leaven" "hid in three measures of meal." To a careless reader of ecclesiastical statistics, the Swedenborgian Church would seem to be one of the least of the great household of faith. To the careful student of religious thought, it appears to be among the more important. It has made very few converts from the faith of orthodoxy, but it has materially modified that faith. Under the combined influence of Swedenborgianism and Rationalism we have reluctantly come to the conclusion that by searching we cannot find out God; and while the Church holds to the doctrine of the Trinity as tenaciously as ever, it no longer adheres to the mathematical statements with which in the days of Athanasius it at once provoked and defied intellectual rebellion It retains as reverently as ever its trust in the atoning sacrifice of Christ, but it no longer berates "good works;" and it insists, far more earnestly than formerly, upon what is good Swedenborgian doctrine—that without holiness no man can see the Lord. It retains its old affection for the Bible, but it no longer sanctions the use that was made of it in the days when the followers of Cromwell cited the extermination of the Canaanites as an apology for the massacres in Ireland. It holds fast to the solemn truth, which none has ever taught more vividly than Christ himself that after death is the judgment, and after judgment heaven and hell; but it has accepted, unconsciously, from Swedenborg, his teaching that every man carries heaven or hell in his own bosom, and remits to the past the fearful pictures of Edwards and his cotemporaries, of literal torments and a remorseless and pitiless God. In a word, as a little salt changes the contents of a large vessel of water, so Swedenborgianism, seemingly lost in the great multitude of churches, has more or less modified the form of faith in all.

Whoever, therefore, desires to understand modern theology, and the elements which have contributed to its formation, has need to study the writings of Emanuel Swedenborg. Whatever minister desires to understand modern religious thought in his own congregation, must know something of Swedenborgianism, though he has not a Swedenborgian in his parish. It is not likely he will ever become a convert to the New Church. It is not probable he will ever have to warn others against it. But he needs none the less to be acquainted with both its truths and its errors. In the former he will find much from which he can obtain useful instruction. In the latter he will find much which he strives in vain to comprehend.—N. Y. Independent.

WASHBURNE AND RAWLINGS.—By the way, the Secretary of State, it is said, will shortly exchange places with Mr. Washburne. I do not give this as a mere on dit, but as coming from tolerable authority. The President cannot do without Washburne. These men were born for each other, and appear to be as indissoluble as Chang and Eng.. Ask Farnsworth!

There is no truth in the report of the actual suspension of General Rawlins from the War Department. The despatch from the West is a shallow device. But that there has been an attempt on the part of the Boutwell faction (who originated the report) to drive him from the Cabinet is known to every body here, except, perhaps, the President himself. I have no faith in any of these people from top to bottom; but I have always said that whatever of brains, character, or common honesty there was among them was monopolized wholly by the Secretary of War. He is manifestly out of his proper place. Had he been blessed with a good, substantial Southern social and political education, he would doubtless have made one of the first men of the nation. Webster always said he got polished at Washington, and never failed to give credit where credit was due. But this is of by-gone days.—Cor. Baltimore Gazette.

☞ Two former French schoolmates met after a lapse of years. "So you are married, (Victorine)?" "Yes." "Happy?" "Oh, yes; perfectly happy. "You have children, of course?" "No; you know our lodgings are so small."

☞ An Indiana railroad, which ran on a trestle-work for a long distance, became so noted for its casualties, that the alligators came up regularly for their daily lunch.

THE FRENCH PRESS.

What the Volatile Frenchmen Like—Figaro, Emile Girardin.

The second journal in circulation I have already spoken of, the Figaro, which issues 50,000 copies. This journal is not read, as many others are, for its politics, for it really has none. It neither advocates nor opposes the Empire, nor recommends any other form of government. As its name imports, it is entirely devoted to gossip, and indulges in all kinds of pleasantry, of which perhaps the most favorable in form are stories known here as canards, without the least scruple, and circulates statements and rumors that are, for the most part, destitute of foundation, but are so piquantly expressed and so wittily conveyed as to amuse the reader. This is essentially one of the most positive of the French traits. They would rather read in a journal some spicy scandal, thrown off by an artistic pen, whether true or not, than be startled over the latest or most important item of news, which the American and English demand before everything else. This is just the forte of the Figaro, which cares nothing about news or facts of any sort. Its only object is to exercise its wit, and it does this boldly and at the expense of men and things. Every day it publishes a lot of letters correcting its misstatements of the day before, which it is obliged to do to escape a legal summons; but this is done with so much playfulness and often raillery, as to be as abusive as the original canard. Nothing proves more conclusively what kind of a newspper the mass of the Parisians prefer than the fact that the Figaro is the second in circulation, though sold at three cents the copy. The People, at one cent, is read by the lower class, whereas the Figaro is read by the better classes indiscriminately.

Another journal of the same description, at the same price, has been started within a year, called the Gaulois, and its circulation has steadily rose up to 22,666. If it should continue to be written and conducted with the same success as its rival, there is no doubt its prosperity will be equal. While there are no journals in Paris so much in vogue as these two, there are, certainly, none more tiresome and unattractive to English or American readers. It is just like dining on syllabub or slaking your thirst on frost. Instead of the latest and most reliable news and some sensible articles on the current topics of the day, you are treated, as I have said, with dainty bits of gossip, or highly seasoned tales of accidents by flood and field, for the most part invented by the writer. Just imagine the Herald, of New York, or the Times and Telegraph, of London, conducted on such principles. Instead of being the most successful journals of these respective localities, they would disappear from the face of things in six months' time.

The best newspaper in Paris is unquestionably La Liberte, edited by the ablest journalist of the day, Emile de Girardin. He never fails to provide the latest news that can be obtained, and he was the first to establish, as a new feature of La Liberte, when he founded it some three or four years ago, a well organized system of correspondence from the various capitals of Europe and America. In point of style, no writer on the Parisian press approaches Girardin, and his views are frequently pushed to a logical sequence that is damaging when applied to the politics of the day. Still, his leaders are unsurpassed by any other journal, and his circulation is 17,000, while that of the Figaro is over 50,000, both being sold at the same price—three cents. Now what are the deductions to be made from these curious facts? I leave them for you to draw according to your fancy, but for my part, I can not but think that the population which prefers, in a daily journal, the witty nonsense of the Figaro to the facts and ability of the Liberte, are not likely to get on very well, or very long, with parliamentary government. This has been proved by the breakdowns that have already occurred. However, let us go on with our lucubrations on the Paris press.—Cor. N. Y. Herald.

The Value of the Sabbath.

Not many years ago, a contractor in America, went to the West with his men and teams to make a turnpike road. At first he paid no regard to the Sabbath, but continued his work as on other days. He soon found however, that the ordinances of nature, no less than the law of God, were against him. His laborers became sickly; his teams grew poor and feeble; and he was fully convinced that more was lost than gained by Sunday labor.

When gold was first discovered in California, the miners worked for a time without any weekly cessation; but they found that they were digging graves as well as gold; and, having lost their reckoning of the Sabbath, they actually made a day of rest for themselves.

When the engines of an extensive steam packet company in the South of England were getting considerably damaged, the mischief was soon repaired by giving the men what the bounty of their Creator had given them long before—the rest of each seventh day.

A distinguished merchant in America once said, "I should have been dead or a maniac long ago had it not been for the Sabbath." This was said in the hearing of others; and one of them told of a merchant who used to boast that he found Sunday the best day for planning voyages, but who was then in a lunatic asylum.

"Hail, Sabbath! thee I hail, the poor man's day;
On other days the man of toil is doom'd
To eat his joyless bread, lonely; the ground
Both seat and board, screen'd from the winter's cold
And summer's heat by neighboring tree or hedge;
But on this day, embosomed in his home,
He shares the frugal meal with those he loves;
With those he loves he shares the heartfelt joy
Of giving thanks to God."—Early Days.

"Mack" Mad.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, whose editor was the spicy correspondent of the Commercial, thus gets after Mr. Halstead, the editor of the Commercial. It seems Halstead called Mack, a "pesky little Orangeman;

Mr. Halstead, who edits the Daily Garbage Cart with so much facility, is perhaps not aware that the communication in relation to the Fenians, which he so cheerfully admitted to the columns of the Garbage Cart, had been denied admittance not only to the Enquirer, but to the then existing Irish West, before it was presented to him. The editor of the Fenian organ refused to print it because it was nonsensical trash, which, however, was its chief recommendation to the Garbage Cart.

Concerning what the Garbage Cart says when it calls the editor of the Enquirer an Orangeman, it is not worth while to take notice, except for the opportunity it presents of remarking that Murat Halstead is a liar.

ACCIDENT.—Willie Bell, a lad, was caught in the machinery at the Rolling Mill and badly mangled on Friday evening.

REAL ESTATE SALES.—By Wallace & Fowler, Saturday afternoon:

Two lots on Hunter street, 25x105, for $580 00 each, to Dr. O'Keefe.

BARRETT'S AUCTION.—The auction by Captain J. H. Barrett, yesterday evening, was well attended, and the goods disposed of at good figures. The pair of Fawns sold for $10.

QUO WARRANTO CASE.—To-morrow is the day set apart for the hearing of the Quo Warranto case vs. Justice Spencer, before Judge Pope. L.J. Gartrell will represent the defendant.

OFF FOR CHATTANOOGA.—Amid loud cheering, some twelve or thirteen car loads of "American citizens of African descent," left, yesterday morning, on a pleasure trip to Chattanooga.

CELEBRATION.—On Saturday next, 28th inst., Anderson Division Sons of Temperance have a celebration at Lithonia, at one o'clock. Several addresses are expected. Members of other temperance organizations invited to attend.

DECIDEDLY POPULAR.—The Ne Plus Ultra Soda Fount, at the Live Drug Store, is decidedly a popular resort, and the handsome young gent who dispenses the delicious beverage there, is almost as popular. Dick Campbell, seems to be a favorite, with the young ladies, especially.

PHILLIPS & CREW.—We are indebted to the enterprising firm of Phillips & Crew for specimen boxes of their "Falcon," "Robert E. Lee," and other brands of steel pens. If you wish a superior article of steel pen, manufactured expressly for this firm, call at the Central Book Store, where you can obtain them in any quantity. Besides this, the firm keep a large assortment of books, periodicals and stationery.

FIRE.—On Saturday morning, about 4 o'clock, a dwelling house on Hunter street, belonging to a Mr. O'Neil, was destroyed by fire. It was occupied by two printers, Thomas Moore and George Dunlop, who lost a portion of their kitchen furniture, but saved their house furniture. The fire is supposed to have been accidental. The house was not insured. Tallulah engine being at the shop for repairs was not out.

LAYING THE CORNER STONE.—The Corner Stone of the new Catholic Church in this city, will be laid with imposing ceremony on Wednesday the first of September, by Rev. Bishop Verot, after which a sermon will be preached by Rev. Father Ryan. The various Railroad Companies have agreed to bring persons attending the exercises for one fare.

Supreme Court. — Morning Session, Saturday, August 21.—The Court delivered opinions in the causes which had been heretofore argued, except those involving the question, whether the relief act, as to opening judgments, is Constitutional. These will be held up till next term

The Court will meet again to sign the minutes, and then adjourn till the next regular term.

The order of the Circuits has been changed. The new order will be published as required by law.

A WARNING TO YOUNG MEN.—A young man was yesterday sentenced to the chain gang for using obscene language on our streets, whose history should be a warning to the young men of our city. He once stood high, and bid fair to be a prominent and useful citizen. An excellent clerk and accountant he commanded high salaries. But in an evil hour he was led to join in the social glass. The inevitable sequence was loss of character and business. Step by step he passed along down the drunkard's pathway. He told a gentleman a few days since (for he came from a neighboring city) that he had just escaped from the lunatic asylum, which may perhaps be true. Let young men beware of the bowl, for beneath its sparkling light lies concealed the serpent's tongue and the viper's venom—disgrace and death.

CRUELTY.—A friend related to us yesterday an instance of cruelty perpetrated by a father upon his children, that deserves the condemnation of every right thinking man. It appears from the narrative of our friend, that a gentleman in this city has married the second time, and two children by a former wife, do not feel disposed to stay at home. Hence, this reputed father, who bears the semblance of a man, to keep them at home, has bound them together with chains! Yesterday morning, when the alarm of fire had called the father out, the children escaped from the house, and were found by other parties, sleeping soundly under a bridge. They were carried to the "lock up" and taken care of. Here the father found them, and drove them through the streets chained. Language fails us in characterizing such gross and inhuman conduct. The wretch who can exercise such cruelty upon little children, is not fit or qualified to control children, and deserves to die childless and friendless, unpitied, unwept and forgot.

We think such a case demands the intervention of the strong arm of the law, to protect the weak against the strong.

THE SIMMS EXAMINATION—Second Day's Proceedings, before United States Commissioner, W. B. Smith. Examination of J. S. Nall, resumed.

Know P. H. Woodward. He was special agent of Postal Department during Simm's term. He had access to books of office; never denied access to them. He had a room near by. Deficit in money-order account first ascertained by Mr. Woodward, in August 1868. Deficit then existing was made up in part by Mr. Simms borrowing money and having it placed to credit of money-order account. Not certain, but think, it left a balance of $3,000 or $4,000. Latter portion of deficit, at that time, received from the Postal Department drawn on the Post-office funds, and causing thereby these drafts to be paid out of money-order. Had the drafts not been paid, they would have been protested and returned back to Washington. Mr. Woodward did not examine, as I am aware, the books of money-order office from August, 1868, until Simms went out. He could have examined them if he wanted to, as there all the time, except four days in December. Would have known if he examined, or desired to examine, them. Mr. Simm's income from salary and other sources was placed to the credit of the money-order fund. Greater portion of deficit resulted from paying postal clerks, mail agents, contractors and Post-office clerks. Some of the drafts from postal department on Mr. Simms, were for large amounts.

Witness refreshed his memory by reference to book.

Witness then called over the drafts in order. Among the drafts are several in favor of P. H. Woodward, special agent, postal department, amounting to about $2,— ranging from September 1867, to May —. Witness stated that the right hand of the drafts were in the Post-office at Washington, the left hand being retained by Mr. Simms. From his own knowledge of the book from which he read the statement of amounts of drafts, and the manner in which it was kept, the amount due Mr. Simms, Postmaster, May 10, 1869, by the Post-office Department, was $7,309 84. Witness footed up the amount every month as entered by the Postmaster. Witness was in the postal service from January 8, 1867, to May 22, 1869; had opportunities of knowing incorrectness of accounts of the Postmaster sent out by the Postal Department; witness believes the accounts were incorrectly kept; morally certain they were; have seen accounts sent out by proper channels from Washington to Mr. Simms; have seen drafts sent out from Washington to Mr. Simms, that the parties on whom they were drawn produced receipts against them; Mr. Simms instructed witness to charge him with every amount taken by him from the fund, except last payment, and witness so charged them up on his books; books offered in evidence by defense: Journal and Ledger of Post-office.

Books kept by witness for Mr. Simms, does not contain all moneys received, because not designed to do so; the journal and ledger contains the personal accounts of employees of Atlanta Post-office, including Postmaster, postal clerks, route agents, and different accounts of the State Department, including Executive Department, Comptroller General, Secretary of State, etc. The book of Monthly Statements contain consolidation of all moneys received and paid out. Witness assisted in making up balances; the monthly statements forwarded to Washington were exact copies from Post-office books; never heard Mr. Woodward, or any one else complain about Mr. Simms' monthly statements; in several instances the monthly statements were returned, on account of minor errors, caused by neglect in copying from Post-office books; the errors were sometimes in favor, and sometimes against, Mr. Simms; have known statements returned by the Department at Washington to Mr. Simms, with the remark that he had charged himself with more than he was legally accountable for.

The admissibility of evidence showing what credits Mr. Simms was entitled to, was discussed at length by counsel, until the hour of adjournment. L. E. Bleckley opened the argument in a concise and logical effort, and was replied to by Gen. Gartrell, in a spirited, forcible and eloquent manner. Judge Lochrane followed on the same side in one of his unanswerable, terse and pointed speeches. Col. John Milledge concluded in behalf of the Government, in an effort that reminded his friends of the "days of yore" when the Colonel held the masses spell bound by the magic eloquence of his tongue, and proved that the "fire of youth" had not deserted the old man yet.

The Court announced that it would take time to decide the question, and adjourned until to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

☞ The fame of the celebrated PLANTATION BITTERS has no parallel in the history of Medicine. The thousands upon thousands of bottles that are made and sold daily is but proof positive of their wonderful virtues. Thousands of certificates can be produced showing the efficacy and certainty of the cures which they effect, and the medical fraternity, usually so jealous of anything which causes persons to think and doctor for themselves, are compelled to acknowledge their wonderful virtues, and prescribe them under other names. They are sold by all druggists.

BRECKINRIDGE—His Reappearance at the Bar.—At the court house in Lexington, on Saturday afternoon, General Breckinridge made his first effort at the bar since the beginning of the late terrible conflict. He argued in the court in the case of Cook vs. Innis, administrator, which involves some abstruse legal questions. He also addressed the jury as only General Breckinridge can, the power of his oratory and his handsome personal appearance having the usual striking effect. It has been almost a decade since Gen. B. has attempted the conduct of a legal case, and the long years elapsing that were full of the romance, the victories and defeats, the crushed hearts and blasted hopes of an unsuccessful war, caused the first appearance of General B. at the bar, to be regarded with peculiar interest and his remarks to be listened to with the closest attention.—Louisville Evening Express Aug. 18.

L. H. BRADFIELD'S COLUMN.

DR. J. BRADFIELD'S

FEMALE REGULATOR,

Woman's Best Friend

THIS valuable Medicine is prepared for WOMEN exclusively, and to be used by WOMEN only. It is adapted especially to those cases where the WOMB is disordered, and will cure any irregularity in the "menses," except in such cases as require a surgical operation. As these last are very rare, the FEMALE REGULATOR is of almost universal application. In a sudden check of the "monthly courses" from COLD, trouble of mind or like cause, it acts like a charm, by RESTORING THE DISCHARGE IN EVERY INSTANCE, thus relieving the fever, headache, pain in the small of the back and "lower stomach," flushes of heat about the face, chilly sensations, burning of the eyelids and general restlessness. Taken in time, all these symptoms pass away immediately, without injury to the constitution. Frequently, however, the proper remedy is not applied in time, the disease becomes chronic, and the foundation laid for numberless evils to the constitution of the woman. The next "turn" comes around and there is no "show," or perhaps the "whites" will appear. There will be some uneasiness about the womb, but very little or none of the natural fluid escaping. The complexion becomes sallow, bowels, swollen, a sort of greenish caste about the face, constant dull aching pains in the head, weight in the lower stomach and back, with or without whites, palpitations of the heart, pallor, exhaustion, indigestion, weariness, langour, aching across the loins, loss of appetite, pain in left breast, tightness across the chest, cough and giddiness. If still allowed to go on, "green sickness" will be fully developed—the headache becomes severe, with loss of memory, diminishing sensibility, SICK STOMACH, dyspepsia no relish for food, loss of flesh, increased fluttering of the heart SWELLING OF THE FEET, legs and body and occasional spitting of blood. The slightest effort causes HURRIED BREATHING, almost SUFFOCATION. The skin is flabby and a "doughy feel." This is a sad picture, but it is the condition of thousands of women between the ages of 15 and 45, who are brought to the verge of the grave by ignorance or neglect to take the proper remedy. To all who are afflicted with any of the symptoms above mentioned, in connection with an irregularity of the "monthly sickness," we earnestly say TAKE DR. J. BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR. A few ounces taken, you will at once experience its benefits, and with a little patience you will be fully restored to health.

This remedy has been extensively used for upwards of twenty years by many of the most experienced and successful Physicians of Georgia.

We repeat, that Dr. J. BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR is prepared for WOMEN and to be used by Women only.

A trial is all we ask.

ATLANTA, Ga., December 29th, 1868.

Dr. J. BRADFIELD—Dear Sir: I take pleasure in stating that some time previous to the late war, I used, with the utmost success, on a servant girl, your FEMALE REGULATOR, prepared then at Bradfield's Drug Store, West Point, Ga. She had been suffering severely from suppressed menstruation, and this Medicine soon restored her to health. She is, to-day, living in Atlanta, sound and well

I will state, further, that I know of its being used, with equal success, on a servant girl of my brother-in law, Professor Rutherford, of Athens, Ga. This woman had, I think, been diseased for six years. She was a house servant, and seemed cured, up to the time of "freedom," I do not hesitate to indorse your preparation for the purposes for which you recommend it.

Yours truly, JNO. C. WHITNER.

As the majority of persons living in the South are predisposed to disease of the Liver, it is granted by all intelligent physicians that most of the pains and aches of our people are due to organic or functional derangement of that important organ. Prophitt's Liver Medicine and Anti-Billous Pills strike directly at the root of the evil. They cure the Liver which, in nine cases out of ten, is at the bottom of the Coughs, Dyspepsia, Colic, Sick Headache, Rheumatism, Constipation, Menstrual Obstructions, etc., so common among our people. Earache, Toothache, Acute Rheumatism, Neuralgia and and bodily pains of every kind flee before

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR OR Medicine for Dyspepsia, Headache Jaundice, Costiveness, Camp Dysentery, Sick Headache, Chronic Diarrhœa, Affections of the Bladder and Kidneys, Fever, Nervousness, Bilis, Diseases of the Skin, Impurity of the Blood, Melancholy or Depression of Spirits

Most of the ailments here enumerated have their origin in a diseased liver, which is the most prevalent affection in this country, and as in many cases the patient is not within the reach of a physician, it requires that some remedy should be provided that would not in the least impair the constitution, and yet be active and safe. That such is the character of the SIMMONS REGULATOR there can be no doubt, which the testimony of hundreds will establish.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED

LIVER. Pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade is mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternating with loax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily start

THE DAILY CONSTITUTION,

ATLANTA, GEORGIA::::AUGUST 21.

THE FASHIONABLE BELLE.

BY E. H. KELLOGG.

The fairest face,
The charming grace,
I ever chanced to see,
Was on Broadway
The other day,
As I strolled leisurely.

She looked real sweet,
Her ankles neat,
'Peeped 'neath her balmoral;
Her pretty feet,
In shoes complete,
Set off that handsome gal.

Her eyes were blue
As heaven in hue,
Her skin like alabaster;
But every grace
Of her sweet face
Was marred with black court plaster.

And I'll contend
Her Grecian bend,
Just perched upon her back,
Drew all the trains
Of brainless swains
That followed in her track.

She was most fair,
But still her air
Showed pride and self-conceit;
And what seemed true
And fair to view,
Was naught but counterfeit.

LOVE, JEALOUSY AND BEE-STINGS.

A Jealous Young Lady Stands on a Bee-Hive to Watch her Lover Toying with a Pretty Widow—The Hive is Overturned, and the Bees——.

From the Albany Evening Journal, Aug. 12.]

The presence of the green-eyed monster is as frequently perceived in high as in low estate. Pretty young ladies are, it is said, peculiarly liable to the disease. It creeps into their hearts in such insidious disguises that the artless little beauties are not aware of its existence until it crops out in such passionate excesses that it frightens them to contemplate it.

No doubt it was precisely in such a way that a young lady on Franklin street, Albany, became amenable to its influence. For some time past she has regarded a youth with especial favor. Charlie possesses many attractive qualities. He dresses in the latest mode, wears an "Alpine," and cultivates a moustache. Yet he is fickle in his disposition, and while his lips were attuned to the harmony of sweet words, and a low, passionate recital of love's anguish for the fair Julia's ears, his mind is enumerating the attractions of the pretty little widow around the corner.

Now, this widow is no friend of Julia or she of her. For her life she can't see what Charlie admires in her. Indeed, Charlie denies any special interest in the coquettish beauty, but he goes to see her none the less. The fact that Julia disapproved it had no effect in changing his practice, and longing with a woman's curiosity to know what it meant, Julia determined to find it out. She forgot her self-respect, and became a spy. The pretty Julia became an earesdropper.

Seeing Charlie entering the front door of the cozy little cottage wherein the widow abided, she hastened to admit herself into the yard by the rear gate, and peeped in at the window. Just underneath the window, however, was a little square box, on which Julia stood to get a good look into the room. Her worst fears were realized. On a sofa just large enough for two, the pretty widow and Charles sat, with heads inclined, and a low monotone issuing from the lips of either, telling, as plainly as words might have done, of love's confessions.

Julia stepped back, the box turned over, and innumerable angry little insects issuing, proclaimed it a bee-hive. Of course they stung her. Fierce as mimic warriors the angry little demons laid hold of her shapely extremities, popping a sting into her plump little hand, another into her rounded cheek, and even the silken hose were no protection to the exquisitely fashioned ankle. She rolled on the ground and crushed ruthlessly in mud and mire her hands, feet and body.

The house was alarmed, and the inmates came rushing out to learn the cause of the uproar. Even the impudent Charlie looked cunningly over the widow's shoulders; but that might be pardoned, had he not asked sympathetically, "If the bees had not stung her?" Hartshorn and camphor were called into requisition, and Julia, swathed in flannels, and poisoned by the sting of the bees, consigns both Charlie and the widow to very disagreeable lives hereafter.

☞ Three important reasons why clover should always be grown with timothy. First, the clover being tap-rooted penetrates deeply, stands drought, mellows the soil, and then timothy grows much stronger and holds up the clover. Secondly, if sown for pasturage the timothy almost universally prevents the clover from swelling cattle. Thirdly, hay is too binding, especially for cattle, and clover too washy (succulent), hence both together are better than either alone.

FRESH TESTIMONIALS!

DARBY'S PROPHYLACTIC FLUID!

THE ASTONISHING

Family Medicine!!!

Saved from Death—Read!

MONTGOMERY, ALA., June 28, 1869.

MESSRS. J. DARBY & Co., 161 William street, New York—Gents: Yours, of the 23d, is before me and has attention. It gives me pleasure to say, that my belief is, that your "Fluid," under the supervision of a kind Providence, saved the life of my youngest child, some six years ago. The child being wasted to a skeleton, by the effects of teething, and an affection of the bowels therewith. I had never seen any one reduced so low to recover "Physic" had been tried in vain, until the Physicians stated it was useless. A friend recommended your "Fluid," or ozone, which he stated was one of the component parts of it. I did so, and the effect was like magic, plainly discernable in one hour, in its good effects, producing quiet and sleep almost at once, where irritation and sleepless restlessness had previously possessed the child to nearly entire exhaustion.

I at first administered it in a small way, 2 and 3 drops in a spoonful of water, and increased it to 6 and 10 drops. It completely checked the bowels, and had the happiest effect, the child rapidly recovering.

I have tried your "Fluid," on animals, with the same effect; both horses and cows, mingling more or less in water, and letting them drink.

I have no hesitation in saying, I believe it a specific for Chronic Diarrhœa, or any violent affection of the bowels.

I would not be without it in my family, under any consideration.

Yours, truly, WILLIAM FOWLER.

Mr. Fowler is a member of the celebrated Banking House of Fowler & Somerville, Montgomery, Alabama.

AND AGAIN!

Read the following letter from Mr. Frank Saunders, a well-known citizen, and brother-in-law of the beloved Bishop Paine, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South:

189 BROADWAY, NEW YORK, July 29, 1869.

MESSRS. J. DARBY & Co., 161 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK—Gents: About the 10th of June last, one of my children was taken with Scarlet Fever, in its most malignant form, and as soon as I could I procured your valuable disinfectant, "Darby's Prophylactic Fluid." Although it was several days after the appearance of the disease before I began using the Fluid, still, by a free use of it, the disease was not only confined to the one case, but the malignity of that case somewhat mitigated. During the use of the Fluid as a disinfectant, in my family it was also, tried in a case of headache, and one of toothache, the results in each case being instantaneous relief. It was afterwards tried in a case of Erysipelas, with almost equal success.

It is due to the merits of this compound, also, to state, that the case of Erysipelas in question, being located in the feet, the Fluid, in its application, was brought in frequent contact with a troublesome corn, on one of the feet, to the utter discomfiture of said corn; for, upon subsequent examination it had disappeared, and though it was sought for diligently, it could not be found.

I hand you this, hoping it may be the means of inducing others of earth's poor sufferers, to test for themselves, as I did, the great merits of this great remedy.

Very respectfully yours, FRANK SAUNDERS.

Never was a medicine so universally esteemed and extolled. It never fails. It may be depended on.

☞ Consignments and orders solicited.

GORDON Co., GA, June 28th, 1869.

MESSRS. ADAIR & BRO, Atlanta, Ga.:

GENTLEMEN—We received yours a few days since, requesting a statement of the merits of the Gullett Gin purchased of you last year. I have to say of this Gin, that it is decidedly the best Gin of which we have any knowledge. The workmanship of the machine is very superior, every part of it being made with great care, and the boxes and shafts being set in a cast iron frame, admitting of no springing or working. It runs with a smoothness and nicety seldom attained in such machines. The improvements of this Gin are: 1st, it takes the dirt and trash out of the cotton. 2d, it, by means of the steel brush wheel, combs out the lint, and renders the fibre much longer than the ordinary gin, or, at least, makes the cotton show a much longer fibre. These two improvements gives cotton ginned on this Gin, we think, fully the advantage of 1¼ cents per pound in value over cotton of the same kind ginned on the ordinary gin; and when the cotton in the seed is very trashy and dirty, or contains a great many hard locks, it may add more to the market value of the lint. We could perceive no difference between the draught of this Gin and the old one we were placed by it, of the same number of saws. The Gullett Gin certainly deserves the attention of planters.

Very respectfully,
J. C. & R. GARLINGTON.

DR. HUNTER.

CONTINUES to treat all private diseases, Syphilis in all its forms, Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Orchitis, and all urinary diseases, and the effects of mercury are completely eradicated; spermatorrhea or Seminal Weakness, resulting from self-abuse or other causes, and which produces some of the following effects: as blotches, bodily weakness, indigestion, constipation, aversion to society, unmindfulness, dread of future events, loss of memory, indolence, nocturnal emissions, and finally prostration of the vital powers, can be fully restored to health. Persons afflicted with this, or any other delicate, intricate, or long standing constitutional complaint, should give the Doctor a trial. He never fails.

The Doctor publishes a medical circular that gives a full exposition of venereal and private diseases, that can be had free at his office, or by mail for one stamp. It gives a clear delineation of all the diseases and conditions resulting from the infringement of the moral laws, excesses, indulgences, exposure, and imprudences in married or single life. Every sentence contains instruction to the afflicted, and enabling them to determine the precise nature of their complaints.

The establishment, comprising ten ample rooms, is central. When it is not convenient to visit the city, the Doctor's opinion can be obtained by giving a written statement of the case, and medicines can be forwarded by mail or express. In some instances, however, a personal examination is absolutely necessary, while in others, daily personal attention is required, and for the accommodation of such patients there are apartments connected with the office that are provided with every requisite that is calculated to promote recovery, including medicated vapor baths. All prescriptions are prepared in the Doctor's own Laboratory, under his personal supervision. Medical pamphlet at office free or by mail for two stamps. No matter who have failed, read what he says. "THE UTLEY COTTON PRESS."

A new invention of power whereby all friction is overcome. The simplicity, economy and durability of this Press astonishes all who see it, and the more so, that a power so simple should so long have been unappropriated. The strain is wholly upon two (3) Iron Bars 1¼ inches square, operating on these bars as if two men were pulling at each end in contrary direction, which will sustain a strain of 190,000 pounds each. With this Press two men can do all the packing or pressing of a 500 pound bale inside of eight minutes, and if need be, one man can operate, only requiring more time. This Press will not occupy more space than a Piano, and can be placed under the Gin and receive the Cotton direct from the Gin, thus doing away with Lint Rooms, and can be readily taken down and transported as it is simple and light. We can supply these Presses cheaper than any yet offered. Will send circulars to any desiring, and would advise all wanting Presses to withhold buying until they examine this. We will, at an early day, have one on exhibition in Atlanta, when it can be seen.

R. P. GLENN, Agent,
Wright & Carrs Warehouse.

R. P. GLENN, ESQ.—Dear Sir: I am so much pleased with the style, make and operation of the Utley Cotton Press, that I have concluded to order one of them from you for my plantation on the Mississippi River.

I do this, notwithstanding I have on my place a large and superior 10 inch Iron Screw Press, which cost upwards of $300 before the war. Believing that the saving of time and space, to say nothing of its superior baling qualities, and by reason of its great power, will more than repay its cost over the one now in use. I do not hesitate to recommend this Press to all who may require one.

Very Respectfully,
A. J. HOLMES.
